Useful Datasets for Development Economics Research

Plamen Nikolov

Harvard University

1 Micro-level data

1) International Household Survey Network (IHSN)
URL: http://www.internationalsurveyetwork.org/

- Type: Longitudinal/Cross-sectional
- Regions: All countries
- Unit level: Individual/Household
- Huge catalog of data from household surveys and censuses, mainly for developing countries
- Provides basic information on the surveys as well as links and contact information

2) Keeping Track by the UK Office of National Statistics and ISER
URL: http://iserwww.essex.ac.uk/ulsc/keeptrack/index.php

- Type: Longitudinal/Cross-sectional
- Regions: All countries
- Unit level: Individual/Household
- Large catalog of longitudinal data, with basic search functions and contact information
- The database lets you search by Country, type of unit responsible, period, main topics covered
- Industrialized and developing country sources

3) Bureau for Research and Economic Analysis of Development (BREAD)
URL: http://ipl.econ.duke.edu/dthomas/dev_data/index.html

- Type: Longitudinal

If you have questions or error corrections, please email me at pnikolov@fas.harvard.edu
• Regions: Latin America, Asia, Europe, Africa
• Unit level: Individual/Household
• Large collection of links to household surveys
• Lets you search by geographic region, by country, topic module
• Based on the criteria, lets you see the name of the survey that matches you query
• Some links to firm-level, macro data and national statistical offices
• Also has cutting-edge working papers on development economics topics

4) Demographic and Health Surveys (DHS)
URL: http://www.measuredhs.com/
• Type: Some longitudinal/mostly cross-sectional
• Regions: All continents
• Unit level: Individual
• Probably the best source for demographic and health data; comparable surveys for some 70 countries. Very good coverage for Africa
• Survey data on request; summary statistics and good documentation openly accessible on website
• Some countries have specialized surveys on HIV, gender etc. Some newer ones also have GIS coordinates

5) Multi Indicator Cluster Surveys (MICS) by UNICEF
URL: http://www.childinfo.org/
• Type: Cross-sectional
• Regions: All continents
• Unit level: Individuals
• Focuses on women and children only
• Questionnaires similar to DHS but a better resource for child labor and AIDS
• Need to register to get access to datasets

6) World Bank Living Standards Measurement Study Household Surveys (LSMS)
• Type: Some longitudinal/mostly cross-sectional
• Regions: All continents
• Unit level: Household
• Started in 1980s
• Some of the best-known surveys on this topic (along with DHS)
• Some longitudinal surveys
• Also has some tools for using household data

7) RAND Family Life Surveys
URL: http://www.rand.org/labor/FLS/
• Type: Longitudinal
• Regions: Southeast Asia, South Asia, Latin America
• Unit level: Individuals/Households
• Surveys only conducted by the RAND Corporation
• In-depth surveys on Malaysia, Indonesia, Guatemala and Matlab (a region in Bangladesh)
• Also holds other household, firm and national economic surveys for Indonesia

8) Abt Associates Surveys
• Type: Longitudinal
• Regions: All continents
• Unit level: Individual/Household
• Surveys related to impact evaluation projects
• Contact IHRsourceCenter@abtassociates.com for more information on data availability

9) World Bank Research Datasets - Poverty
• Type: Cross-sectional/Panel
• Regions: All continents
• Unit level: Regions
• Lists a variety of datasets available at the World Bank by research program: conflict, finance, human development, international migration, macroeconomics, poverty research, sustainable development, trade research
• Often these data have been used for studies at the World Bank – check for papers before using it

10) International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI)
URL: http://www.ifpri.org/data/dataset.htm
• Type: Longitudinal
• Regions: All continents
• Unit level: Household
• Mainly household and community-level surveys related to food security and production
• Also has some institutional data, social accounting matrices, and geospatial data
• Need to request data through an online form

11) World Bank Africa Household Survey Databank
   • Type: Longitudinal/Cross-sectional
   • Regions: All continents
   • Unit level: Household
   • Features a ‘survey navigator’ for finding data

12) Various health datasets (maintained by John Kane at Oswego State University of New York)
   URL: http://www.oswego.edu/~economic/hea-data.htm
   • Type: Longitudinal/Cross-sectional
   • Regions: Mostly US
   • Unit level: Individual/Household
   • Mainly US data on health-related issues

13) Kaiser Family Foundation list of data sources
   URL: http://www.kaisers.org/research.asp?id=268
   • Type: Longitudinal/Cross-sectional/Panel
   • Regions: Mostly US
   • Unit level: Individual/Household
   • Excellent list of datasets (mainly US)
   • Categories include public health, health care financing and delivery, state level data, and related sources

14) Not-only-economic data UCLA Data Archives Home
   URL: http://www.sscnet.ucla.edu/issr/da/
   • Type: Longitudinal/Cross-sectional/Panel
• Regions: Mostly US
• Unit level: Individual/Household
• Holds some older surveys, often US political polls, election studies and attitude data

15) Jameel Poverty Action Lab
   URL: http://www.povertyactionlab.org/JPALdata/
   • Type: Experimental
   • Regions: Africa, Latin America, Asia
   • Unit level: Individual
   • You can download the datasets that were created in their evaluations

16) Michigan ICPSR
   URL: http://www.icpsr.umich.edu/ICPSR/access/index.html
       http://www.icpsr.umich.edu/ICPSR/access/subject.html
