I owe much to my friends. Anne van Buren, Eleanor Garvey, Kenneth Carpenter, Roger Stoddard, and James Walsh went through the manuscript with an unsparing eye for accuracy and intelligibility. Whatever clarity this presentation has achieved is due largely to their efforts. The infelicities remain my own. Nancy Finlay volunteered to oversee the finer points of mounting an exhibition. My wife, Marian, read and commented on the text in its various stages. She encouraged this enterprise and stayed with it to the end. Her contribution went far beyond these sentences.
